

BETH

Through United Way, our community helps students like Beth, who are struggling in school. Beth was homeless for three years and had not been attending school.

When life became more stable at home, she re-entered the school system, but really struggled getting back into the rhythm of homework and regularly attending classes.

Beth's school was able to connect her to an AmeriCorps Student Success member.

This AmeriCorps member was able to work with Beth one-on-one to overcome her unique challenges. By the end of the year Beth was passing ALL of her classes!

HANNAH

Hannah is a single parent who works unreliable and unpredictable hours at a manufacturing company. Her unconventional schedule made it difficult to secure childcare. Also, she often could not access the food pantry during operating hours and couldn't afford to buy groceries.

Searching for support, Hannah dialed 211. Immediately, 211 signed Hannah up for the Last Mile Delivery program, which sent a food box to her door weekly. Additionally, 211 connected Hannah to resources for childcare and after-school programs.

With 211's direction, Hannah was able to secure some stability in her life and ensure her family always had sustenance.

RAYLENE

When the Welcome Baby started visiting with Raylene, this single mom was living with her parents. She had one bedroom for herself and her three children.

Throughout 4 years of Home Visits, the Welcome Baby Program supported and applauded her progress as she got a job at a storage facility and moved into a spacious two bedroom apartment.

She was so good at caring for her children and making sure they had everything they needed. They loved the visits and the learning kits.

ANDY

Through United Way, children like Andy can enter school prepared, creating positive impact in the community.

United Way's Collective Impact team helps people work together to solve hard problems, and our Little Neighborhood Libraries program is one of their initiatives to bring about sustainable change.

Andy's parents know it's important to read to their son, but only had access to books targeting teens and adults. As part of the Collective Impact work, a new Little Neighborhood Library was installed within walking distance of Andy's home.

Andy's family now has access to a variety of books that are developmentally appropriate, and his parents read to him every day.
